Your Chance to Get Involved with Measure A!
2013-14 Measure A Oversight Committee Applications Now Available

In March 2011, Alameda community members passed Measure A – a parcel tax to benefit the local public schools – by 68.01 percent.

One of AUSD's commitments is to maintain accountability and transparency with all expenditures of Measure A dollars. A key component of that commitment is maintaining an 11-member Oversight Committee to review the district's compliance with the terms of Measure A. That committee is made up of local community members – including parents, district employees, and other Alamedans interested in the schools.

Want to get involved? The committee meets three to six times, for two to three hours at a time, between January and December of each year. The committee’s work culminates in an annual report that is presented to the Board of Education in December.

Please consider applying for this important position. And please tell your friends, family members, and neighbors about this opportunity!
